

They thought recovering from my stroke would take a miracle.

Actually, it just took Riverside.

When Sarah Lancaster of Westerville suffered a stroke, the hospital she went to initially sent her to Riverside Methodist Hospital. That's because Riverside Methodist has the most comprehensive set of treatments in the region to reverse the effects of a stroke. Using revolutionary devices like the MERCI Retriever and Penumbra, Riverside Methodist's incredible physicians are participating in clinical trials to develop ways to remove a stroke's clot with a catheter. In fact, it was these breakthrough procedures that not only saved Sarah's life, but had her up and walking the day after her stroke. It's no wonder that physicians from all over the world are turning to the physicians at Riverside Methodist for the latest in stroke care.
